Rockefeller

Prancto Newton to showing twelve prative figure panels at the galiertes of E. Gimpel & Wildenstein, No. 686 Fifth Avenue, that are designed for installation in the Pompetian room in the city residence of John D. Rockefeller Jr. They are all very sympathetically painted and are highy decorative. The used colors are carefully chosen and make a strong artistic appeal to the observer.

The dancing figure with a mythologic flavor is full of action. The tambourine is held aloft, and the artangement of the scant drapery is in-dicative of passionate abandon. The dance step is brilliantly registered. The harpist is effectively rendered in bive. The management and portrayal of the drapery are effective to a degree and the pose is most excellent. The cymbaltat raises one cymbal high in air. The other vivide awaits the contact that is provocative of the characteristic crash. Mr. Newton again scores in his admirable painting of the drapery.

The woman with the mirror has a charming pose. The touch of purple makes a pleasing foil. The woman with the bird site upon the introduced foral wreath most pleasantly. The pink of the wind blown wrap reveals the beautiful figure.

and a torch bearer, is portrayed as wearing his leopard skin girdle and with his winged hat. The Archer resembles the Madison Square Diana in pose. The blue scarf makes a fine balance for the extended bow. The Fruit Bearer carries a tray containing apples and grapes with decorated leaves. The yellow girdle strikes a charming note. The anatomy of the The Century Magazine, during the last thirty years, has been a liberal buyer of magazine illustrations. The best artists rejoiced to have their li-lustrations used in such a medium. After the drawings had been reproduced they were carefully preserved against their possible use in other ways. Under the new management of the Century, it has been decided to dispose of these used drawings. They have been placed in the hands of E. P. Dutton & Co. for sale. Perhaps there are 6,000 of such drawings.

Some of the contributing artists are Harry Fenn, E. W. Kemble, John Sloan, Oliver Herford, Peter Newell, Cecilia Beaux, Albert E. Sterner, Harrison Fisher, Jules Guerin, Henry Hutt, W. T. Bends, H. C. Christy, Eric Pape, B. West Clinedinst, A. Castalgne, W. Granville Smith, A. D. Blashfield, George Inness fr. and F. Luis Mora.

association volumes and other interesting items are to come up for sale to-day, at the Collectors' Club, Room No. 802, Forty-second Street Building, No. 30 East Forty-second Street. This sale is under the auspices of Scott & O'Shaughnessy and includes many rare and interesting Field items from the library of Frank L. Hanvey of Washington, D. C.

The lot that is likely to excite the greatest interest is the very rare first edition of Eugene Field's first book, the now famous Tribune Primer. This offering is a presentation copy from the author with autographic inscription. It is also authenticated by Francis Wilson. The book is a 16mo. and is in the original blue paper wrappers as issued.

BIG SUMMER SHOW AT COLUMBIA THEATRE PACKING THE HOUSE.

In the presence of capacity audinces, Lew Kelly and the Behman Travers have begun the second week f their all-summer engagement at he Columbia Theatre. That this perrumance has achieved unusual success was amply proved the first week is an attendance every afternoon and right of as many people as the heatre could hold. The audiences were made up of fully as many women as men, which is unusual in burlesque houses. The performance accuracy from the properties and the second seco s entirely free from objectionable ele-ments. Besides the humorous work if Lew Kelly and his associates, indents of the performance that have aroused the great enthusiasm are the "Charlie Chaplin" song and the Pigeon Walk." Ned Dandy's Imita-P'geon Walk." Ned Dandy's Imita-ton of Frank Tinney, Sallie Fields's song specialty and Gertrude Lynch's impersonation of Eva Tanguay are among the bits of the performance.

Pecorations by Francis Newton Fustces' Sales at Greenhut's T

(By Order of the United States District Court)

Now's the Time to Buy EVERYTHING You Need!

NEVER IN THE MEMORY OF THE OLDEST INHABITANT was there held a series of sales of such importance to everybody as are those at "The Big Store."

To realize ready cash is our object. And we want to do this as quickly as possible. With this in view, we have gone through the immense stocks of WORTHY, SEASONABLE MERCHANDISE in both of our vast buildings, and, taking no account of previous prices, WE HAVE MERCILESSLY SLASHED THE FIGURES MARKED ON GOODS IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

Consider what this means: Your everyday needs must be supplied SOMEWHERE. And, since you can supply them here for less than anywhere, it must be evident and reasonable to you to Come to Greenhut's and Get Your Share of the Greatest Bargains You Have Ever Known

Remember—that for every item quoted here, we could quote HUNDREDS, if we only had the space.
